

Abstract of the Disclosure

The high frequency components of a SCSI signal are adaptively equalized using an adaptive filter having an adjustable gain. A comparator is used to compare an input signal with a predetermined threshold level. Based on the result of the comparison, the adjustable gain of the adaptive filter is modified.

30053566V1